Concept note

Transformational education involves reflection, introspection and action, with a deep relationship between the head, heart and hand. The National Curricular Framework 2005 (NCF) reminds us that the school curriculum must integrate various domains of knowledge, so that the 'curricular' encompasses all, and is not separated from the co-curricular or extra-curricular. This has significant implications for the role of art, music and drama in education, to nurture children's creativity and aesthetic sensibilities.

The course on Drama and Art in Education also helps in understanding the self and as a form of self-expression for enhancing creativity. The components of fine arts aim to develop aesthetic sensibilities in student-teachers and learn the use of art in teaching-learning. Student teachers will visit places of art, exhibitions and cultural festivals. Encouragement needs to be given to understand local culture and art forms and interpret art works, movies and other Media. Likewise other activities can be used to build trust and cooperation, the sense of responsibility, pursuing tasks collectively and exploring varied perspectives. Be it visual or performing, the practice of art deepens children's ability for perception, reflection and expression, providing them with alternative languages to experience and communicate subtle, diverse and unfamiliar territories, from human to the larger consciousness of nature. The challenge of teacher-educators lies not only in expanding the landscapes of children's art, but in also perceiving their world, their artistic processes and then from that sense of understanding, explore ways of assessing their work.

Objectives

- To conduct workshop for working with artists/artisans to learn basics of Arts and Crafts and understand its pedagogical significance.
- To develop skills in activities, such as drawing, and painting, clay modeling, pottery, mixed collage, woodcraft, toy making, theatre, puppetry, dance, music, etc.
- To give training on how art forms can be used as tool/ method of teaching-learning of Languages, Social Sciences, Mathematics and Sciences
- To perform any one PERFORMING ARTS like DANCE, MUSIC, THEATRE AND PUPPETRY
- To develop narratives in visuals, composition of an imagined situation, telling a story through comic strips
- To equip prospective teachers for Art Integrated Pedagogy
